It's Elementary

by Jodi Lewis

Springdale Elementary is proud to offer a supportive, enriching environment where every student is known and encouraged to succeed. With small class sizes, 1:1 support, and 1:1 technology access, students receive individualized attention and the tools they need to thrive academically. We prioritize literacy through daily reading interventions that help students build strong foundational skills. We are in the top percentage of schools in the District for reading and math.

Creativity and the arts are a vibrant part of our school culture. Through the Beverly Taylor Sorenson Art & Music Program, students engage in high-quality arts education and have opportunities to showcase their talents in our annual Holiday program, school art show and yearly talent show. We also partner with Z-Arts, inviting local professional artists to share their creative mediums and inspire our students.

Our school is proud to be a Leader in Me school, helping students develop leadership, responsibility, and confidence. Students also participate in hands-on learning through STEM activities, our school garden, and a unique partnership with Zion National Park, which enhances science and social studies learning through engaging lessons and field trips. Beyond the classroom, students can participate in Adventure Club, held in the fall and spring, where they explore and learn together in fun and active ways in nature.

Together, these programs help create a well-rounded educational experience that supports academic growth, creativity, leadership, and community connection. At Springdale Elementary we recognize and appreciate the amazing support from all over our community in so many different ways.

We currently have 13 students that live in Springdale and Rockville, 6 from Virgin and 24 students from the LaVerkin, Hurricane area. We have open registration, meaning students from out of our boundaries are welcome to come to Springdale Elementary. The school bus stops in LaVerkin, Virgin and Rockville. On Tuesday, April 28, 2026 there will be a Kindergarten Open House, for all new kindergarten age students to come meet the teacher and tour the school, this will be held at 5:00.

The Kindness Ripple Effect

by Debi Keys

How One Small Act Can Change Your Day — and Someone Else's

Kindness doesn't have to be grand to be powerful. In fact, some of the smallest gestures can create the biggest impact. A warm smile. Holding the door for someone. Offering a sincere compliment. Taking a moment to listen. These simple acts may seem minor, but they often create something much larger — a ripple effect that extends far beyond the original moment.

When we show kindness, we do more than brighten someone else's day. Research shows that acts of kindness can also improve our own mood, reduce stress, and even support heart health. Our brains release feel-good chemicals such as dopamine, serotonin, and oxytocin when we help others, creating a natural boost in happiness and connection.

But the real magic happens when kindness spreads.

When someone experiences a moment of kindness, they're more likely to pass it forward. A single thoughtful gesture can inspire another act, and then another, creating a chain reaction that touches many people we may never even meet.

Think about a time when someone showed you unexpected kindness. Maybe a stranger paid you a compliment when you needed encouragement, or a friend reached out just when you were having a difficult day. Chances are that moment stayed with you longer than you expected.

Kindness has that power.

In today's fast-paced world, it's easy to become caught up in our routines, responsibilities, and stress. Yet kindness reminds us that we are connected — that small moments of humanity still matter.

And the best part? Kindness costs nothing but a little attention and intention.

Simple Ways to Start a Kindness Ripple

• Smile and acknowledge the people around you
• Offer a genuine compliment
• Send a quick message checking in on a friend
• Thank someone who often goes unnoticed
• Let someone merge in traffic or hold the door
• Take a moment to truly listen

These small actions may only take a few seconds, but their impact can last much longer.

The truth is, you never fully know what someone else may be going through. A small moment of kindness might be exactly what they needed that day.

So today, look for one opportunity to brighten someone's moment. You might be surprised how quickly that kindness comes back to you.

Because kindness, like a ripple in water, has a way of spreading far beyond where it begins.

The Ant

The motion of an ant carrying a straw six times its length down a dusty tire track caught my eye. I paused to watch an ant's frenzy of work in the still noon heat. I had to admire its single minded purpose. Grains of gravel were boulders. The straw would catch and stick under them. The tread pattern of a tire in the dust was a jagged canyon. The ant scrambled up and over every one – never losing its grip on the straw.

This had to be a very special straw. The ant carried and pulled the straw over the top of other straws – straws that, to my careless eye, looked easier to carry, or more appetizing.

I noticed that the ant had a goal. An ant hill was several yards away – over the horizon to the tiny ant. This was no selfish ant working for personal gain; this ant worked for the whole community of ants. But the ant couldn't know that it was impossible to drag the straw all the way to the nest. There were cracks in the ground that would be canyons to the ant. There were weeds that would be impossible mazes blocking the way.
The ant could never drag his straw through all that.

I had to know, so I waited and watched to find out how long the ant would struggle before giving up and dropping the straw.

The desert sun burned like an open fire as the ant met the first clump of weeds, but every new challenge only inspired the ant to work more feverishly. The ant pulled the straw, then rushed to the other end and pushed. Long moments passed when nothing the ant did moved the straw. The straw was surely stuck beyond the power of just one ant. I kept expecting the ant to forget about this straw, wander off, and find something else.But the ant raced from one side to the other, tugging and pulling until the straw finally broke free. Then the ant blindly tried another direction until all the weeds in the road were passed, all the cracks crossed, and only smooth, open ground was ahead.

With nothing between the ant and the ant hill, the sun didn't seem as hot and the desert wasn't as empty. Against the odds, the hero ant had won.

As the ant carried his prize closer to the hill, other ants crossed its path, but each one ignored the ant. Their unfeeling disregard for this ant's magnificent triumph of will seemed so wrong to me. This ant and this straw should be celebrated. Instead, I had to watch carefully just to keep track of the hero ant among the swarm of other ants near the hill.

Suddenly, without the slightest hesitation, the ant dropped the straw a little way up the hill, picked up a small rock like a thousand others, and carried it off in another direction. I lost the hero ant in the confusion of ants on the hill. I looked back for the special straw, but it was just like a thousand other straws on the ant hill – ignored by all the ants now.

Medical Clinic

In talking with several people over the past few weeks, the proposed medical clinic came up. (I promise I didn't goad them) and my sense is people think building a new one is a waste of time and money. My opinion is that the opinion of the majority should form the decision. — not just 5 members of council even though they were elected. I have no idea how to ascertain what that majority opinion is, however. Before anyone can have a really informed opinion anyway, the following questions need to be answered. (I am still working on this. I assume Town Council is, too. I had hoped to have the answers for this issue, but have not done so. Apologies.)

- What services would be provided in a new building, presumably there would be more services not just more room for the same services?
- How much money is Family Health willing to commit to paying monthly for that new building?
- How many years would they commit to running the new clinic?
- What would the hours be if Springdale builds the new medical clinic? One comment made by Ms. Wright seemed to indicate it would have the same limited hours but I believe I misunderstood even though I listened to it more than once.
- Just how much money out of Springdale's coffers would be required to build the clinic?

If you can think of other important questions needing to be answered before the decision is finalized, the town will be better if you let them be known.

A brief meeting for all willing to help advise this publication this Thursday, March 26, 2026, at 2 pm at 650 Watchman Dr, Springdale. I have Girl Scout Cookies.

Planning Commission Meeting Recap

Last Wednesday's planning commission regular meeting was a good example of how they function.

The main focus of the meeting was about stormwater management for projects involving soil disturbance. Utah mandates permits for projects exceeding one acre where soil disturbance occurs, and what projects don't disturb the soil? Well, mowing the lawn doesn't but pulling weeds does.

Certainly new builds do. It looks like Springdale is going to add another layer of difficulty to build, or do anything that disturbs the soil. The reason Utah only messes with lots an acre or more is because it would be an administrative impossibility otherwise.

Commission did a really good job trying to understand all this new stuff, asking questions, and bringing up "what ifs." They also seemed highly anxious to NOT make this more onerous to just regular folks, planting gardens, etc. than it needs to be.

Although town staff "consider that it could be beneficial to introduce a local stormwater permit to address construction stage stormwater management issues. An applicant would apply for the permit at the same time as their building permit. The application form would simply list the pollution prevention measures that should be employed during construction. The contractor would submit time stamped photographs to the Town at defined frequencies which would give evidence of compliance with the pollution prevention measures."

I am quite sure those having to do this will consider themselves just regular folks and would probably have other adverbs than "simply" to describe having to come up with the list and submit time photos, as well as having had to get a permit.

Ah, well, Springdale is already a town in which it is mighty challenging to build, what's one more layer of hassle? And ecology matters.

Those of you with more knowledge and opinion on this should read the information at: <https://www.springdaletown.com/AgendaCenter/ViewFile/Item/2043?fileID=11890> , maybe listen to the 03/18/2026 Planning Commission Regular Meeting discussion at:

< https://www.youtube.com/@SpringdaleTownPublicMeetings>

and give the Planning Commission the benefit of your insight.

The other major discussion centered around their upcoming priorities. They decided their first order of business would be

- Revisiting ordinances that might need changing due to concerns about fire mitigation of wildland urban interface areas. (Remember WUI). For instance, the town now requires replacing a tree you take down with 2 trees, but trees close to structures create a greater fire hazard.
- Continued work on nonconforming commercial properties
- Soil disturbance stuff
- Perfecting the Virgin River management plan
- Revisiting parking ordinances

Their tier two level priorities include:

- Street performer ordinances
- Revisiting the size and height bonus
- Encouraging more open space by allowing agricultural uses to make the owner revenue for their agricultural efforts
- Considering retaining wall standards.

This whole meeting was a good example of how a commission should function. It certainly wasn't an on-the-edge-of-your-seat kind of meeting, but they work hard and carefully. I gave the link before but if you care to review the hour and a half meeting, here it is again:
< https://www.youtube.com/@SpringdaleTownPublicMeetings>

Survey

There are two surveys to which you are all urged to respond.

The first is the well being survey. Responding to this survey helps the town increase its ability to increase your well being. If you have not received information about this survey as well as a link to take it (via email), contact the town. Or just respond to The Springdale Sun. I can help out.

The second is the Messaging Initiative survey. You should also have received an email about this. This is such a fun, non-angst-producing way to get involved with the community. Check it out:

Poop, Revisited, and Who Wouldn't Want To?

A recent issue of The Springdale Sun reported, "There is a newly finished, fenced dog area near the playground at Town Park, ready for Fido and friends. That's the good news. Overheard on the street (yea, verily, the bad news): "People are not scooping their dog's poop at the fenced dog park." What? A pox upon people of such thoughtlessness. Surely they must be tourists. No citizen of Springdale would be so dastardly. Defecation is never decoration and to not scoop is most certainly desecration."

I defecate you not, TSS has now had several citizens reporting poop sitings elsewhere around town, even on sidewalks. Whaaaat? Again, tell me it's tourists, not our tidy, considerate, fellow dog walkers. Oh, the horror.

Scoop the poop, or, or, or a pox upon you. !!!! Please, let us all, you know, be good.

I betcha I'm preaching to the choir. Spread the word, not the ordure.

Hello Friends,

There will be a "No Kings" rally on Saturday, March 28th at SR-9 and Bridge Road in Rockville.

Rally starts at 9:00 a.m. and will go to 11:00 a.m.

Bring placards, hats, and water. Please consider parking at the Rockville Community Center and walking over to Bridge Road to avoid traffic issues.

Plan to stay on the sidewalks and respect residents and motorists, but feel free to express your views.

Hope to see you there!
